REPORT

OF THE

SUPERINTENDING SCHOOL COMMITTEE

OF

EAST KINGSTON,

FOR THE YEAR ENDING MARCH 8, 1864.

SCHOOL MONEY.

Raised by Tax, . . . . .	$478 00
Interest of J. Morrill, School Fund, . . . . .	120 00
Interest of Literary Fund, . . . . .	36 09
Literary Fund, . . . . .	44 55
Proportion of Railroad Tax, . . . . .	17 81
Received for Tuition, . . . . .	1 00
<hr/>
Total, . . . . .	$697 45

NORTH SCHOOL.

This School has been under the charge of Miss LYDIA G. THYNG, the entire season. Length of school 29 weeks. Whole number of scholars 20. Average attendance 12. At our first visit to this school there was not sufficient energy and promptness in the scholars in their recitations, and this was remarked upon to scholars and teacher, and at the subsequent visits we found quite an improvement in that respect. This school was orderly and the several classes showed a fair degree of improvement in their studies.

CORNER SCHOOL.

The summer term of 24 weeks was taught by Miss J. A. FREMONT. Number of scholars 38. Average attendance 22. The school was small at the closing examination ; some of the scholars acquitted themselves well ; but this school suffered much as the teacher remarked, by

“a lack of punctuality in the attendance of a number of the scholars.” This may, in part, account for the fact that the school did not, on the whole, show so great improvement as is desirable at the close of a six months’ school.

Winter Term, Mr. WARREN HOYT, teacher. Length of school, 8 weeks. Number of scholars 26. Average attendance 19½. This was his first effort at school teaching. He was willing to receive advice in the management of his school, and at its close it showed he had labored faithfully and successfully for the improvement of those under his charge.

POUND SCHOOL.

Miss SALOME B. PARKER, teacher for the Summer school of 24 weeks. Number of scholars 45. Average attendance 32. This teacher is prompt and energetic in the management of her school;—her government though not too severe is firm and decided;—her school at the close gave credit to teacher and scholars, and we had the pleasure of meeting more visitors there than at any other in town. Mr. LA ROY F. GRIFFIN succeeded to the winter term of 9½ weeks. Scholars 28. Average 19. This was his first school. He is a fine scholar and well understands the branches taught in our common schools. So far as we could see he succeeded well in the management of his school; and with more experience he might make a first rate teacher.

FALLS SCHOOL.

The Summer School of eight weeks was taught by Miss MARTHA J. FALL. Number of scholars 42. Average attendance 39 1-2.—This teacher left the school suddenly; and having no notice of its closing, it was visited but once, at the beginning, and consequently we cannot judge from observation of her success. Mr. W. HENRY PARKER succeeded to the fall and winter terms. Scholars 43. Average 35 1-2. This school showed the most punctual attendance—it has the most scholars, and more advanced scholars than any other school in town. It has the material for a good school, and we were glad to find there a teacher adapted to the work. It requires tact and energy to successfully manage this school. This teacher had good order, for so many restless beings, and aroused an interest in the several studies.

CONCLUSION.

Much of the success of our Schools depends upon the selection of teachers by the Prudential Committee—they should exercise their own opinion of the fitness of a teacher by all means in their power, for a person may pass a good examination and still be unfit for a school teacher. Some of our best scholars make very poor teachers. Such teachers only should be employed as are willing to devote their whole time for the benefit of the schools. As a teacher leaves his impress on the tender minds entrusted to his charge, care should be taken that such only should be employed as would leave impressions that we would not wish afterwards to efface.
